

UA Plays Host to AWS

State Delegates Arrive; Sessions Open Tonight

2-21-50
The first AWS state convention held at the university since 1946 will get underway tonight at Maricopa hall. Representatives will register and attend a get-acquainted mixer from 9:30 to 11:30.

A business meeting will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30. Welcoming speeches will be given by President McCormick, Fred Snyder and Mrs. Dorothy Lindsay, assistant dean of women.

General chairman of the convention is Vida Wilhite. The committees are composed of members of the AWS general and executive councils.

All university women are invited to attend the meetings.

AWS Confab Held Tomorrow At Tucson

2-17-50
With the theme of the "art of leadership" as the topic for their convention at Tucson this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, thirty women will represent ASC at the convention.

The representatives will leave on chartered Greyhound buses Friday afternoon at 3 p. m.

Upon arriving Friday, women will register and attend a mixer.

Tentative plans for Saturday morning and afternoon discussion groups will cover a student panel and discussion material of problems of AWS on different campuses.

Saturday evening the women will have the opportunity to see the U of A game vs. Flagstaff or attend the student production of "Jade Bracelet".

The representatives will return Sunday morning after breakfast.

Those going on the trip are: Mrs. Martha Hall, sponsor; Bea Bednorz, AWS president; Dot Tessman, AWS secretary; Patsy Page, AWS treasurer; Elaine Tessman, president, off-campus women; Guyrene Rutherford, president, South hall; and Elnora Geiler, president, Matthews hall.

Also, Carol Ann Thiel, Eleanor Martin, Gerry Benscoe, Nancy Kellog, Joyce Ywanow, Roline Wood, Lorraine Cross, Dolores Benevidez, Hazel Farrow, Betty Robbins, Betye Jeane Jordan, Mary Ann Enloe, and Dortha Jo Davis.

Concluding the list will be: Norma Erickson, Betty Bowen, Bertha Romero, Shirley Jones, Pat Freeland, Ruth Toolefsrud, Lois Foster, Erma Jepsen, Phyllis Cox, Margie Hall and Carol Mack.

Leadership Learned By AWS Delegates

2-21-50
Following a week-end AWS convention in Tucson, representatives from ASC returned to the campus with fresh ideas concerning the art of leadership.

Included in Saturday's program was a group discussion of AWS problems, a lecture by Professor Charles Legeaux on "Democratic Leadership," and a panel discussion on "Keeping An Organization Alive and Functioning."

In his lecture, Lebeaux, who is professor of sociology at the U, pointed out the advantages of a democratic leader over an authoritative leader. He stressed the importance of allowing the group to think for themselves and set their own goals.

"By distributing responsibility," Lebeaux said, "the democratic leader makes himself dispensable and an organization will run more smoothly in his absence. The authoritative leader, on the other hand, wants to "run the whole show," the group feels excluded, and there is poor cooperation."

Another point brought out during the convention was the obsolete theory of "born leaders." According to Dr. Klonda Lynn, professor of speech at the U, leaders are made to the occasion.

Coed Leaders Leave For Meet

2-17-50
TEMPE, Mar. 29—(Special)—Four Arizona State College at Tempe coeds will leave Saturday for Norman, Okla., to attend the Intercollegiate Associated Women Students organizations' regional convention.

The girls, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Martha Hall, acting dean of women, are: Bea Bednorz of Bisbee, AWS president at the college; and Dot Janssen, Phoenix, Eleanor Martin, Tempe, and Guyrene Retherford, Lewis, Colo., candidates for the AWS presidency next semester.

Election of new AWS officers at the college is set for April 19.
