I received yesterday the "Treasure Land" from the sun kissed land, "dear old Tucson", and while I am and was indeed very glad that you sent it, I cannot exactly understand why you could not let out warm feeling of a true and tried friendship that has stood the test of more than thirty years lie asleep and slumber without stirring up and reminding me again of the only great mistake of my life, Leaving Arizona. It was not alone leaving the Territory, but so many of my old friends, "The Old Pioneers".

An obituary printed in the Kansas City Journal of May 3, 1911, stated:

Mortimer R. Platt, known among cattle men throughout the Southwest, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home, 3525 Harrison street.

In 1860 Mr. Platt was admitted to the bar at Rochester, N.Y., and practiced in that city three years. Then he came West to Omaha where he enlisted in the army and was sent as guard of a pack train to Washington Territory. All during the trip he rode a government mule, which with constant attacks from maurading Indian bands helped make the event one not to be forgotten by Mr. Platt. Mustered out of the service on the Pacific coast, Mr. Platt wandered south to Tucson, Ariz., where he became a government contractor, carrying all the United States mail from Tucson to Los Angeles, a distance of 500 miles. The contracting firm of Platt & Capron was for many years the biggest and most reliable business concern in Arizona. In the early '70's the completion of the Southern Pacific put the firm out of commission and Mr. Platt, with a fortune of $18,000 started back to New York. He stopped however at Kansas City and made its vicinity his home.

Mr. Platt is known among cattle raisers chiefly from the fact that he introduced the first Galloway cattle found in the Mississippi valley and since was president of the American Galloway Breeders' Association. At his death he owned a 1,000-acre fine stock ranch near Waldo and a 20,000-acre ranch in Comanche county, Kas.

Died at Kansas City, Missouri, May 2, 1911, aged 75; buried in Forest Hill Cemetery.
