The Escalante neighborhood has a great need for health services for seniors, pregnant women, and uninsured or underinsured persons.

Similar programs do not exist in the Tempe area.

ASU students in nursing and other complimentary disciplines require real world experience to develop their skills.

Situation

What we invest
- Time
- Nursing professors/professionals
- Nursing students
- Students and faculty from other departments at ASU
- Money
- Tempe St. Luke’s Hospital
- City of Tempe

What we do

- Tempe seniors:
  - Provide health promotion including informational workshops and fitness activities
  - Offer group screenings
  - Provide individual services including health assessment and wellness plans

- Tempe residents:
  - Offer health services to people without health insurance or underinsured (e.g. immunizations for children and prenatal education for pregnant women)

Who we reach

- Tempe seniors:
  - Seniors
  - Uninsured
  - Underinsured

- Tempe residents:
  - Children
  - Families
  - Pregnant Women

Outputs

- Activities
  - Provide education & practice in health promotion for students and faculty in nursing and other disciplines
  - Students in multiple disciplines
  - Faculty in multiple disciplines

- Participation
  - Students and faculty have direct client contact, develop and implement programs, write grant proposals, work collaboratively in interdisciplinary groups, and participate in research and publication

Short Term

- Tempe seniors:
  - Learn how to care for their own health and problems both chronic and acute; know their level of risk and are linked to future health service and education; have decreased isolation and receive social support; have improved health status and behavior

- Tempe residents:
  - Immediate health needs of are addressed

Intermediate Term

- Tempe seniors:
  - Enter health promotion classes or receive further services
  - Improved health status and behavior (through the first year)
  - Receive ongoing social support

- Tempe residents:
  - Unmet health needs in the community are reduced and access to care is improved.

Long Term

- Tempe seniors:
  - Students and faculty develop health promotion and critical thinking skills through evidence based practice
  - Faculty learn to manage multi-disciplinary efforts

- Tempe residents:
  - Students and faculty enhance their professional practice and gain greater awareness of health disciplines in the ASU community and the community at large