

ENG 101: Indigenous Rhetoric

- Fulfills ENG 101 requirements
- Focuses on Indigenous texts
- Staffed by culturally-sensitive faculty
- Designed for students of all backgrounds

Instructor: Kyle Grant Wilson, MFA
Program Coordinator
Department of English
LL 172K
kyle.wilson@asu.edu
480.727.9133

Fall 2009 registration info.
Two course options:

T/Th 10:30-11:45 a.m.
⇒ SLN: 73111

T/Th 1:30-2:45 p.m.
⇒ SLN: 72999

Mission

Indigenous Rhetoric provides ENG 101 curriculum that is culturally responsive to Indigenous worldviews. Open to all students, these courses aim to increase student success by utilizing diverse texts and learning strategies in the teaching of English writing skills. The curriculum in these courses offers varied cultural perspectives, ideas, and experiences as the foundation of learning and practicing writing aesthetics.

Instructional Goals

- Provide culturally sensitive curriculum
- Promote student-centered learning
- Foster cross-cultural environment

Requirements

ENG 101: Indigenous Rhetoric meets all goals/requirements for ENG 101 courses.

Assignment Content

Discourse of Indigenous Issues		Captivity Narratives		Reflection on Traditions
Resistance and Assimilation		Definition of "Identity"		Reclamation of "Identity"