Intergroup Relations Center

The IRC is an education, research and advocacy unit that advances the understanding and practice of effective communication and collaboration among members of different groups.

Mission:

We build individual and institutional capacity for understanding difference and for engaging respectful relationships.

In individuals, we promote awareness and appreciation of self and others. Institutionally, we provide leadership and resources that facilitate the University's responsiveness to diversity and equity in its policies, practices and structures.

The IRC upholds and reinforces ASU's commitment to excellence, access and impact.
