CONSULTING AND MANAGEMENT SERVICES FOR GLOBAL BUSINESS OPERATIONS OF ASU

Addendum 3

July 30, 2013

Please note the following answer to a question that was asked prior to the deadline for inquiries date of July 31, 2013.

Q. The subject paragraph reads:

2.1 Working in post-conflict countries poses unique and significant challenges. Describe how your organization is best suited to assist the University in working in these countries. Provide examples of work you have done in post-conflict countries in the past 12-months.

Please provide three current examples of countries you consider to be “post-conflict”.

As there is no mention of providing support in countries “in conflict”, such as Afghanistan, is it reasonable to assume there would be no requests to provide support in same?

In what category would you categorize Yemen, Pakistan, Somalia, and Libya; all countries where there have been media reports of US drone strikes in the last year.

A. Examples of post conflict countries would be Liberia, Iraq, and the DRC. Nations where war has ended within the last ~10 years and/or where the impacts of war on infrastructure are still severely felt. Security and insuring personnel safety may also be a concern in these countries.

It is unlikely that we would be heavily engaged in high-conflict areas such as Afghanistan, however we may have specific requests to engage in those areas. The matrix mentioned in Addendum 1 should include all countries where services are provided by your organization.

The countries that you have identified are also high risk and/or high conflict areas. Again, the matrix mentioned in Addendum 1 should include all countries where services are provided by your organization.
