Frame of Reference

ASU photography professor Mark Klett spent a six-month fellowship in Japan. His goal was to explore a different relationship between people and their environment, different from the sort he had photographed in the American Southwest. The 1995 Kobe earthquake made more difference than he might have expected. Story begins on page 2.